Peerless Midwest is hiring at our Tipton, IN location.

Job description

The position requires the person to troubleshoot pumps (deep well line shaft turbines, submersible deep well submersibles, and horizontal centrifugal) and associated equipment (electrical controls, valves, right angle gear drives, electric motors, and meters) for these pumps used in the municipal water supply, industrial water supply, industrial water conveyance, fire suppression, irrigation, and water level control.

In addition to trouble shooting the pumps and associated equipment, the Water Well and Pump Service Technician shall be able to make corrective repairs to the equipment and install and remove the pumps from the installed positions so repairs can be made to the pump if corrective actions in the field cannot place the pump in desirable operating condition.

For installation and removal of pumps, the Water Well and Pump Service Technician may need to operate a truck mounted pump hoist, a truck mounted hydraulic crane (boom truck), or erect and operate a chain block and tackle. In addition, the working understanding in the use of instruments like voltmeter, ohmmeter, mega-ohmmeter, multimeter, pressure gauges, and alignment instruments is required for this position.

Position also requires the use of large wrenches (chain tong, pipe wrench) for pumping equipment installation and removal. The proper use of slings and hoisting devices is necessary to safely execute the work tasks. Use of cutting torch and welder is also required for field work.

To service Clients, this position periodically requires overnight stays in hotel/motel facility located close to the project location. Peerless Midwest would supply a per diem allowance for each overnight stay associated with project execution.

Commercial Driver License, Class A CDL with Hazmat endorsement, will be required when moving large truck equipment and well cleaning chemicals associated with the job.

Peerless Midwest, Inc. is a drug free workplace. Random drug testing of employees is performed.
